1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1 and 7, drawn to a fabrication method of a mold, classified in class 264, subclass 2.5.
- II. Claim 9, drawn to a fabrication method of a microlens, classified in class 264, subclass 1.1.

Inventions II and I are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the subcombination forms the mold by performing the electroplating while the combination requires separate steps of forming the mold on the substrate and then separating the mold from the substrate. The subcombination has separate utility such as being used in an injection molding operation to form the microlenses and would not have to be used in a coating method to form the lenses. Also, the mold can be employed in a method in which the injected material remains with the mold to form a composite lens with holding structure.

The examiner has required restriction between combination and subcombination inventions. Where applicant elects a subcombination, and claims thereto are subsequently found allowable, any claim(s) depending from or otherwise requiring all the limitations of the allowable subcombination will be examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. See MPEP § 821.04(a). Applicant is advised that if any claim presented in a continuation or divisional application is anticipated by, or includes all the limitations of, a claim that is allowable in the present application, such claim may be subject to provisional statutory and/or nonstatutory double patenting rejections over the claims of the instant application.
